

Thank you for your interest in Senator Enzi's internship program. An internship in Washington, D.C.

provides students with a practical and educational opportunity to participate in the daily operation of a senate office and observe how the legislative process works first hand.

Interns are responsible for a wide range of jobs including constituent services, media activities, and research for staff on various issues. Interns will have the opportunity to work with Enzi staff in two areas: legislative and press.

Legislative

Legislative intern duties range from clerical tasks such as sorting faxes and mail, making copies, and running errands to leading Capitol tours, writing policy or hearing summaries, and conducting research for legislative aides. Interns will also have the opportunity to observe floor proceedings, and attend committee hearings and lectures given by Government leaders.

Press

Interns that work in the press shop experience the interaction between Senator Enzi and the media. They assist the press department by searching for and compiling daily state and national news clips, taking pictures of the Senator in action, and writing grant press releases. They have the opportunity to attend classes to improve their writing and advanced photo software skills.

Eligibility

Priority is given to students from Wyoming, or those studying in Wyoming, who have achieved at least sophomore status at an accredited university or college. Students in all areas of study are welcome to apply.

Housing and Stipend

Housing is not provided, however, the intern coordinator will supply information on a variety of housing options. In addition, a stipend of $1600 per month is paid to help defray the costs of living in Washington, D.C.

Credit

Many departments offer college credit for educational internships. Enzi interns are encouraged to pursue this option within their program of study. Interns are typically eligible for 3 to 15 college credits during their internship.

Terms

Senator Enzi offers three internship terms throughout the year.
